RailWorks constructs and maintains industrial track and loop track systems for grain elevators, ethanol facilities and other industries through its network of more than 20 field offices in the United States and Canada.

“Each new grain-related facility can represent more than $1 million in track infrastructure,” says Scott Brace, executive vice president of Railworks Track Systems. “Yet, once a facility is in production, many overlook protecting their track investment. Certain maintenance steps extend a track’s life and enhance safety.”

Comprehensive Service

“Our comprehensive solutions allow us to efficiently provide turnkey services from construction to maintenance and supply,” says Brace.

Inspections and Maintenance

Brace says facility managers should rely on a qualified track contractor like RailWorks to conduct biannual inspections and routine maintenance.

“Railworks inspectors will bring to attention urgent concerns and present a detailed track evaluation and assessment for each turnout,” Brace says.
